

Wyoming Division of Criminal Investigation Concealed Firearm Permits

The Wyoming concealed firearm permit statute provides that Wyoming will honor permits from other states, and issue Wyoming permits to holders of permits from other states, if:

1. the other state recognizes Wyoming permits; and
2. the permit from the other state is valid statewide.

Under our current law, if you a permit holder from another state, if your permit is valid statewide and your State recognizes (or honors) Wyoming permits, you can carry a concealed firearm in Wyoming.

The current statute has resulted in a formal confirmation process with other states. Once the Division confirms which other States' permit Wyoming honors or has reciprocity, those states are listed below for convenience only. However, this listing has no legal effect. If your State is not presently listed, you may also check with your own State's regulatory agency.

Alabama	Idaho	Minnesota	North Carolina	Tennessee
Alaska	Indiana	Mississippi	North Dakota	Texas
Arizona	Iowa	Missouri	Ohio	Utah
Arkansas	Kentucky	Montana	Oklahoma	Virginia
Colorado	Louisiana	Nebraska	Pennsylvania	West Virginia
Florida	Maine	New Hampshire	South Carolina
Georgia	Michigan	New Mexico	South Dakota

It is the sole responsibility for all concealed firearm permit holders to be aware of the requirements and laws of all states*. The permit issued by your state does not supersede any other state's laws or regulations. Legal conduct in your state may not be legal in the state you are visiting.

Wyoming permit holders who plan to visit another state and who also plan to carry a concealed firearm while visiting that state are urged to contact that state before traveling. This will allow Wyoming permit holders to determine all restrictions or prohibitions regarding the carrying of concealed firearms in those states, as well as their laws regarding firearms and weapons in general. Most states have web pages with necessary information.
